Fix 1: Setting a personal Schedule

Strategy:

Include more elements to set the user's schedule (buttons, for example).

Illustrate the steps for adding and removing times to the schedule.

Include more feedback for after the action is completed.
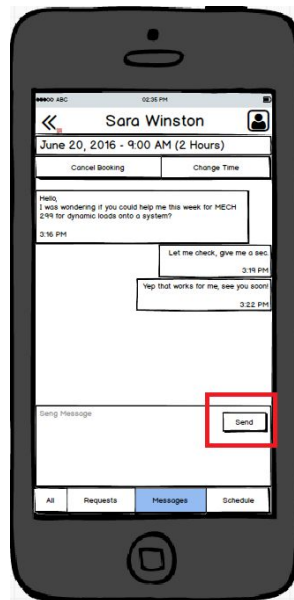

Fix 2: Implement a Home Button

- Our app has a many different screens and it may take too many clicks to return to the home page.

- We will add a home button into header of all pages to allow the user to easily navigate back to the home screen.

Fix 3: The messaging System Structure

We need to clean up the way messages are presented to the user. Currently, it is hard on the eyes and difficult to read. The picture to the left is one way to structure it better.

We need to add a send button where messages are typed. The picture to the left fixes the problem.

Fix 4: quickly reviewing tutor schedule

We were recommended to include a quick icon that shows an tutors available dates when searching for tutors.

This allows a tutee to quickly find tutors that may fit their schedules.

Strategy: Add the icons without overloading/ muddling the screen with too much information.

Fix 5: Tutor and Tutee Distinction

Instead of having the tutor and tutee functionality mashed together into one interface, we will add a tutor and tutee section. Upon logging in, they can select which view they want to be in, Tutor or Tutee, and they will be able to switch views under the menu tab.

Fix 6: Combining Requests and Messages

Instead of having requests and messages in the separated sections, we will combine them by having the requests bolded at the top of the lists, and messages underneath them. They can also filter the messages to only show requests or messages, but by default it will be showing all.

Fix 7: Improved search

We were recommended to remove the rating filter when searching for tutors.

After reviewing, we agreed that the rating filter would be unnecessary as a majority of users would only search for the best tutors.

Strategy: Remove the rating filter bar

Fix 8: More Information To The Success Message

The message is very vague at the moment, so we will be adding the name, date, and time to the success message
